

Abstract

Apparatus and process for removing surface regions of a component

The prior art involves removing surface regions of a metallic component by means of electrochemical processes.

The electrochemical process is accelerated by the use of a current pulse generator (16).

FIG 1